Secret paradise in Palawan

RENDEZVOUS

By CHRISTINE S. DAYRIT

I [illegible]

At Secret Paradise Resort and Nature Reserve turtles come to shore and lay their eggs, which hatch in 45 days. What a surreal sight to witness hundreds of baby turtles marching back to the sea to propagate. After 25 years, these turtles will return to the exact spot where they were hatched.

Without love

If I give everything I own to the poor and even go to the stake to be burned as a martyr, but I don't love, I've gotten nowhere.
1 Corinthians 13:3 The Message

There are only a few people in the world who are willing to give away what they have. But even if you're one of the few who would do so, without love your act of sacrifice wouldn't count. The Apostle Paul, writing to the Corinthians, talked about the tough kind of commitment that would lead to a martyr's death. Even so, he contended, without love, it would be futile.

John Huss was the greatly loved pastor of the Bethlehem Chapel in Prague. People would wait for hours to hear him preach and his message radically changed the city. He preached in his native Bohemian tongue and the masses loved him. The message of Huss was: "Every saint is a priest but every priest is not a saint."

John Huss' enemies came together for a common cause. "Get rid of him," they cried. The king, wanting to be on the good side of the two powerbrokers, agreed to give John Huss safe passage from Prague to Constance where the church wanted to try him as a heretic. The king reneged on his promise and Huss was sentenced to death. His crime? Preaching to the masses.

Huss gave his body to be burned rather than recant what he had said and done. As the flames licked at his body, Huss said, "I have taught the truth according to the Gospel of Jesus Christ, so I'll choose to die – and gladly." The bottom line is that agape love is tough, the kind that is unrelenting, visceral, and uncompromising. But even if you would die for someone you love, says Paul, without love you would die in vain. A contemporary version puts it, "So, no matter what I say, what I believe, and what I do, I'm bankrupt without love" (1 Corinthians 13:3 The Message).

To man belongs the plans of the heart, but from the Lord comes the reply of the tongue. All a man's ways seem innocent to him, but motives are weighed by the Lord. Commit to the Lord whatever you do, and your plans will succeed. The Lord works out everything for his own ends – even the wicked for a day of disaster. The Lord detests all the proud of heart. Be sure of this: They will not go unpunished. Through love and faithfulness sin is atoned for; through the fear of the Lord a man avoids evil. When a man's ways are pleasing to the Lord, he makes even his enemies live at peace with him.

Proverbs 16:1-7

THE STORM CLOUD HAS A GOLDEN LINING

By Jigger J. Jerusalem

IT HAS BEEN PROVEN TIME AND AGAIN THAT CALAMITIES BRING OUT THE BEST IN people. What happened after tropical storm "Sendong" struck the cities of Cagayan de Oro and Iligan last month was no different. Soon after the flashfloods brought by Sendong left so much death and destruction in its wake, help started pouring in from all corners of the country and the world. Local and international groups responded to the immediate needs of the flood survivors by bringing in truckloads of relief goods. Even ordinary individuals shared what they could by giving foodstuff and used clothing.

Among the media organizations that heeded the call to help was The Philippine STAR, through its charitable arm Operation Damayan.

United in REBUILDING ILIGAN

By [illegible]

HARDENED MUD, SCATTERED FURNITURE, uprooted trees, collapsed concrete walls, toppled electric posts and survivors trying to salvage whatever remained of their destroyed lives following the devastation brought by tropical storm "Sendong" welcomed The STAR Group's Operation Damayan volunteers to Barangay Upper Hinaplanon in Iligan City last January 19.

Upper Hinaplanon, a barangay located beside the Mandulog river, has a population of [illegible] people comprised of both Muslims and Christians. Although of different cultures, residents have lived in this barangay for decades in harmony and peace, and the devastation left by the flood has united them even more as they struggle to rebuild their lives.

"We are happy we survived," said [illegible], a mother of four. "My family has adjusted to our present situation. We stay in a makeshift tent made of salvaged tarpaulins during the day for easy access to the relief operations for a ration of food and other necessities. But at night we go back to our partially damaged house at Purok [illegible] where we sleep. It is still home." Her husband is doing odd jobs to eke out a living like most men who lost their means of livelihood following the flood.

As of January [illegible], the Iligan City Disaster Risk Reduction Management Council earlier reported total casualties had reached some [illegible] dead with [illegible] still missing. Authorities attribute the magnitude of destruction and death caused by the flood to the illegal cutting

The stories about...

When The STAR decided to bring Operation Damayan to the two Northern Mindanao cities, it did so under the radar. Its volunteers did everything, from handling the sacks down to the distribution, without any fanfare. Amy Cruz, head of Operation Damayan, led an advance team who spent several days in Cagayan de Oro and Iligan before the scheduled date of the relief operation to lay the groundwork for the actual operation.

It was no surprise then that on the day of the distribution last Jan. 28 in Cagayan de Oro, those who deserved to be given the relief goods did actually get their share. In Barangay Macasandig, one of the worst-hit villages in the city, for instance, Operation Damayan focused on the home-based survivors, those who did not go to evacuation centers and thus received minimal aid donations.

Housewives Annabel Flores, 35, and Marisol Plaza, 35, both of whom have family members who died in the flood when it hit Macasandig on the night of Dec. 16, didn't mind the heat of the morning sun or the long queue as they waited for their turn to receive the 25-kilo sack of rice and grocery items that Operation Damayan distributed to some 800 flood survivors in Macasandig. They whiled away the time telling stories about the flood that changed their lives forever.

Marisol Plaza was told that her husband Mark Angelo lost his life saving others. When news reached Mark Angelo, a barangay messenger, that there were portions of Macasandig already flooded, he left his family in a safe place and proceeded to the site.

When daylight came and there was no sign of him, Marisol began looking for her husband. People she asked would tell her they saw Mark Angelo on the night of the flood. But he never came home. His body was found buried in the mud in [illegible], a kilometer away from the Plazas' house, a few days later.

"He was always like that... not hesitating to lend a hand whenever someone is in dire need. I just wish he is with us today," Marisol, a mother of two, said.

Although she lost her sister Rosemarie to the rampaging waters, Annabel said she was still thankful that one of her children, 12-year-old Mikee, turned up alive after she went missing for more than 30 hours.

"I thought she was already dead. But I prayed that we will at least recover her body. We scoured the flooded areas the next day but we still couldn't find her," she recalled.

Mikee got separated from her family when she was swept away by the strong current. She was submerged in the water twice, and had to hold on to branches before she was rescued. It was on the afternoon of the next day when she was finally reunited with her family.

"Mikee kept telling me how she was brought onboard a boat and was attended to by a very beautiful lady. I have goose bumps every time she would say that," Annabel said, adding that her daughter has a history of having "visions" of the Virgin Mary when she was small.

[illegible] Cagayan de Oro [illegible] Operation Damayan [illegible]

It's not only Mikee Flores who has a tale to tell but there were in fact hundreds of other children who made it through the flood. At a public school in Macasandig where the next stop of Opera-pay," said Richard Manzano, 26, of Purok 5, whose husband operates a computer shop that was totally submerged during the flood. With their 5-month-old baby, the couple ran to Richard's grandfather's house for safety.

"Salamat Ginoo, salamat pud sa Operation Damayan (Thank God, thank you also to Operation Damayan)," said Librada Pantaleon, 75, of Purok 9, whose husband, a vegetable vendor, has had to stop his trade temporarily to make repairs to their damaged house and clean their surroundings.

Carmen Cagol, Ellen Espina, Belen Pandan, Melvalyn Bagol, Esmeralda Velayo, Edna Mendoza, Ricardo Caga, Felipe Gonzaga and many more recipients in chorus said "Daghang salamat sa STAR Operation Damayan (Many thanks to STAR Operation Damayan)."

at least in the hinterlands of Iligan and Lanao del Sur. A total of 328,378 individuals have been affected by the floods, according to the Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD) reports.

The city government, led by Mayor Lawrence Cruz, in coordination with the Department of Health (DOH) Region 10, psychiatrists and volunteer groups are conducting stress debriefing sessions to survivors who lost their loved ones and all those who cannot cope with the traumatic experience.

Operation Damayan, led by Ruby Cruz in a four-vehicle convoy comprised of a van and three cargo trucks loaded with relief goods, negotiated a dusty road going to the barangay.

On hand to coordinate with the group was Upper Hinaplanon barangay chairman Nonello Cabaso and personnel from the City Social Welfare and Development (CSWD) office as well as Ben Capitan, former city councilor and former barangay chairman of Sta. Rosario who is the owner of Cid Enterprises, the exclusive distributor of The Philippine Star, Pilipino Star Ngayon, Pang Masa, and other publications.

Barangay member Rosie Managa – who, with her husband Arnel and their child, survived the flood by waiting for the water to subside for more than five hours on the second floor of Ruiz house — assisted as well.

Damayan team volunteers [illegible]. The relief goods of rice, canned goods, and other food items were organized by the [illegible] Foundation.

Operation Damayan chose to distribute the relief goods, composed of a 10-kilo sack of Masarap rice, canned goods, food items, underwear and a new mat and blanket, to some 300 recipients who are "home based" or living outside the evacuation center.

"I am very happy receiving these goods from Operation Damayan," said Richard Manzano, 26, of Purok 5…

The city government is now on the rehabilitation and reconstruction phase following the flood. Some 1,200 housing units will initially be constructed in a 10.9-hectare land at Barangay Sta. Elena, using funds personally turned over by President Aquino and Social Welfare Secretary Dinky Soliman three days after the calamity.

However, there are at least 3,237 families whose houses were totally damaged and who are now living in evacuation centers and tent cities. Even with donations like those coming from San Miguel Corporation, GMA Network, ABS-CBN, and a host of others, the city government has yet to reach its target of constructing 3,237 houses. Additional relocation sites are also being scouted by a city government task force.

Gawad Kalinga, led by Tony Meloto, has partnered with the local government for the construction of the houses.

In response to the assistance given by countless donors, local government units, corporations, international groups, foreign countries, non-government organizations, and individuals, Mayor Cruz said, "We have seen and are still seeing the best in people. Those who immediately responded to the calamity made sacrifices beyond the call of duty." ■

In My Basket

We are among those who really read cookbooks from cover to cover, recipe to recipe, because we always want to know the motivations and influences of the author/chef.

Cookbooks tell stories

Cookbooks, internationally, are the bestsellers among all titles. We can agree to that, considering most of them in the market tell an interesting story. It could be about being exposed, very early in life, to mother's or lola's kitchens; it could be about a simple love for eating; it could be about the influence of a successful chef; it could be about the delight one derives from different cuisines one finds in travel; it could be about ambition.

We are among those who really read cookbooks from cover to cover, recipe to recipe, because we always want to know the motivations and influences of the author/chef. Recently, we have been lucky to be gifted with four cookbooks, each one telling an inspiring story.

First off, our son nephew and niece, New Zealand-based [illegible] and [illegible], gave us a stunning [illegible] not find anything interesting [illegible]. Produced by the NZ Red Cross, The New Zealand Red Cross Cookbook has loads of touching stories of how the group, for 90 years now, has carried out its mission which is to help the poor and hungry, the sick, the victims of disasters and wars, not only in their native land but around the globe.

They have a continuing program, "Meals on Wheels," which brings food daily to the elderly. Their women have worked for years and years, some of them already in their 90s, still wheeling the foodcarts.

Among their recipes are bacon and avocado cocktail, mushroom soup, fish kedgeree (fish in rice and curry powder), lamb chops with chickpeas (NZ has very good lamb), and raspberry almond loaf.

American-born and raised Bruce Lim's "Inside a Chef's Life" (Anvil Publishing) traces his career from a young age, when his assigned chore was to clean the kitchen and bathroom. He cooked his first adobo at 7. He trained at Le Cordon Bleu in London, worked in various food service institutions in Europe and the US and in 2008, the Asian Food Channel started featuring him in a show called Chef's Table. He has since established his own restaurant called [illegible] in Bonifacio Global City.

The innovative Bruce has injected his own twists into such dishes as queso de bola fondue, grilled prawns salad with mangoes and smoked fish, fried tofu squares with green beans, and stuffed chicken leg adobo with crispy pork flakes.

Claude and Mary Ann Tayag's co-authored "Linamnam" (Anvil Publishing) is a culinary book that is not focused on recipes but rather a guide to the many provinces, cities and towns where they observed regional cooking techniques, noted indigenous ingredients, as well as directing foodies to where good eating places are located.

"The Maya Kitchen Journal for Cooks and Foodies" is a practical diary. Each page of each day has a blank space where the home cook can jot down things to be done, while considering the accompanying recipes. The dishes are simple and make useful suggestions when one is at a loss for what to serve the family.

There's a fifth book, which we authored, "In My Basket, Travel Collections and Recollections," which landed 5th in the last bestseller list. This is a product of 40-plus years of travel to various countries, each with a delightful and delicious culinary adventure. This shows that food and travel make perfect companions.

The good news we received from the International Gourmand Cookbook Awards due in Paris in March is that our book has qualified as a nominee in the "Best Foreign Cuisine" category. Our publisher Anvil has declared we are already a national winner! Hurray!

What an honor! Thanks to all involved.

tion Damayan was 16-year-old Reymarie [illegible] of Tibasak, Macasandig, remembers how he, his five siblings and parents climbed a mango tree and waited for rescuers to arrive. His family was safe, but they were not able to save anything except for three statues of the Sto. Niño and the Virgin Mary.

"All my textbooks and notebooks were gone," Reymarie said, adding that the backpack and school supplies that Operation Damayan distributed are a big help in continuing his studies.

This was echoed by Marlo Estrada, a first-year student at the Misamis Oriental General Comprehensive High School, whose house in Isla de Oro was washed away by the flood. He also lost his books and notes. Marlo is currently living with his father [illegible], a utility worker, and two siblings at the tent shelter village, a temporary relocation site consisting of tents that is home to more than 400 families, in [illegible] Calaanan, Barangay Canitoan – the last stop of Operation Damayan in Cagayan de Oro.

Since the relocation area has no electricity, Marlo and the other kids have to make do by studying and doing their assignments under the street lamps.

Although most were not able to voice it aloud, a lot of recipients of the Operation Damayan donations like Regina Pepito, 58, a tent shelter village resident, did not hesitate to express their gratitude.

Regina received in behalf of her three grandchildren Angelica, 11, Bryan, 7, and Mary, 5, the bags and school materials since they were at school at the time. The children were having difficulty participating in class since they lack notebooks and writing pads.

"[illegible] good [illegible] sa Philippine STAR [illegible] sa Operation Damayan. [illegible]

(Thanks to The Philippine STAR and Operation Damayan, my grandkids now have school supplies)," Regina said with a smile that said it all.

Operation Damayan's relief operation in CDO and Iligan were made possible by the generous support of [illegible] Corporation, [illegible], [illegible], [illegible], Families of Victims and Involuntary Disappearance; PSM Editorial Department, [illegible], [illegible], [illegible], [illegible], TOYM, [illegible], [illegible], Rotary Club of San Juan [illegible], [illegible], [illegible], [illegible], Inc., [illegible] International Inc., and [illegible].
